A ROBIN'S NEST.

My window reaches the cottage eaves,
And o'er it, an elm with drooping leaves
A graceful sweep of drapery weaves,
With shadow and light uncertain;
And a robin brown, with a bright red vest
Covering all her musical breast,
Has woven a soft and cosy nest
In the folds of the leafy curtain.

I love to sit by the window here,
And watch her bringing her dainty cheer—
Crumbs, bugs and worms—to her birdlings
dear,
Whose appetites shock calculation;
But of all the bugs I have seen her get,
In storm or calm, dry weather or wet,
She never has brought them a humbug yet:
I honor her penetration!

To meet her coming, a tiny head,
That seems all mouth, pops up from its bed,
And ere the gaping thing is fed,
Another, and yet another;
And then, with strict exactitude,
She weighs and divides the precious food,
Giving part to each of her hungry brood—
A just, impartial mother!

I wish Dame Fortune, who goes her way
Over the wide world day by day,
Dispensing, as sheer caprice may say,
The gifts which are hers to scatter;
Sowing them broadcast, devoid of rule,
And in a manner provokingly cool,
Giving always some knave or fool
By far the best of the matter—

Giving Fame to one, and Wealth to two,
And Happiness to a blessed few,
And nothing to me and ditto to you,
In such a partial fashion—
Would come to the window here with me,
And watch the nest in the swinging tree,
And learn of the mother bird to be
More just in her distribution!

Selected Story.

KATE YALE'S MARRIAGE.

If ever I marry," Katie Yale used to say, half in jest, half in earnest—"If ever I marry, the happy man—or the unhappy one, if you please—ha!—ha!—shall be a person possessing these three qualifications:

"First, a fortune.

"Second, good looks.

"And thirdly, common sense.

"I mention the fortune first because I think it the most needful and desirable qualification of the three. Although I could never think of marrying a fool, or a man whose ugliness I'd be ashamed of; still I think to talk sense for the one and shine for the other, with plenty of money, would be preferable to living obscurely with a handsome intelligent man, to whom economy might be necessary."

I do not know how much of this sentiment came from Katie's heart. She undoubtedly indulged in lofty ideas of station and style—for her education in the duties and aims of life had been deficient, or rather erroneous; feelings none doubted who had ever obtained even a partial glimpse of her true woman's nature.

And the time arrived at length, when Katie was to take that all important step of which she had often spoken so lightly; when she was to demonstrate to her friends how much of her heart was in the words we have quoted.

At enchanting age of eighteen she had many suitors; but as she never gave a serious thought to more than two, we will follow her example, discarding all except those favored ones and consider their relative claims. If this were other than a true story, I should certainly use an artist's privilege, and aim to produce an effect by making a strong contrast between these two favored individuals. If I could have my way, one should be a poor genius and somewhat of a hero; the other a wealthy fool and somewhat of a knave.

But the truth is:

Our poor genius was not much of a genius, nor very poor, either. He was by profession a teacher of music, and he could live very comfortable in exercise thereof—without the most distant hope, however, of ever attaining to wealth. Moreover, Frank Minot possessed excellent qualities, which entitled him to be called by discreet elderly people a "fine character," by his companions a "noble good fellow," and by the ladies generally "a darling."

Katie could not help loving Mr. Frank, and he knew it. He was certain she preferred his society even to that of Mr. Wellington, whom alone he saw fit to honor with the appellation of a rival.

This Mr. Wellington (his companions called him "duke") was no idiot or humpback, as I could have wished him to be in order to make a good story. On the contrary, he was a man of sense, education, good looks, and fine manners; and there was nothing of the knave about him, that I could ever ascertain.

Besides this, his income was sufficient to enable him to live superbly. Also he was considered two or three degrees handsomer than Mr. Frank Minot.

Therefore, the only thing on which Frank had to depend was the power he possessed over Katie's sympathies and affections. The "duke"—although just the man for her in every sense, being blessed with a fortune, good looks, and common sense—had never been able to draw these out; and the amiably conceited Mr. Frank was not willing to believe that she would suffer mere worldly considerations to control the aspirations of the heart.

However, she said to him one day, when he pressed her to decide his fate—she said to him with a sigh:

"Oh, Frank! I am sorry we have ever met!"

"Sorry?"

"Yes—for we must part now—"

"Part?" repeated Frank, turning pale. It was evident he had not expected this.

"Yes—yes," said Katie, casting down her eyes with another piteous sigh.

Frank sat by her side. He placed his arm around her waist, without heeding her feeble resistance; he lowered his voice, and talked to her until she—the proud Katie—wept—wept bitterly.

"Katie," said he, then, with a burst of passion, "I know you love me! But you are proud—ambitious—selfish! Now if you would have me leave you, say the word, and I go!"

"Go!" murmured Katie; very feebly—"go!"

"You have decided?" whispered Frank.

"I have!"

"Then, love farewell!"

He took her hand, gazed a moment tenderly and sorrowfully upon her beautiful, tearful face; then clasped her to his bosom.

She permitted the embrace. She even gave away to the impulse of the instant, and twined her arms about his neck, but in a moment her resolution came to her aid, and she pushed him from her with a sigh.

"Shall I go?" he articulated. A feeble "yes" fell from his quivering lips.

And an instant later she was lying upon the sofa, sobbing and weeping passionately—alone.

To tear the tenacious root of love out of her heart had cost her more than she could have anticipated; and the certainty of a golden life of luxury proved but a poor consolation, it seemed, for the sacrifice she had made.

She lay long upon the sofa, sobbing and weeping passionately. Gradually her grief appeared to exhaust itself. Her breath came more regular and calm. Her tears ceased to flow, and at length her eyes and cheeks were dry. Her head was pillowed on her arm, and her face was half hidden in a flood of beautiful curls.

The struggle was over. The agony was passed. She saw Mr. Wellington enter, and arose cheerfully to receive him. His manners pleased her; his station and fortune fascinated her more. He offered her his hand. She accepted it. A kiss sealed the engagement—but it was not such a kiss as Frank had given her, and she could not repress a sigh.

There was a magnificent wedding. Splendidly attired, dazzling the eye with everything around in the atmosphere of fairy land, Katie gave her hand to the man her ambition—not her love—had chosen.

But certainly ambition could not have made a better choice. Already she saw herself surrounded by a magnificent court, of which she was the acknowledged and admired queen. The favors of fortune were showered upon her; she floated luxuriously upon the smooth and glassy wave of a charmed life. Nothing was wanted in the whole circle of her outward existence to adorn it and make it bright with happiness. But she was not long in discovering that there was something wanting within her own breast. Her friends were numerous; her husband tender, kind and loving; but all the affections she enjoyed could not fill her heart.

She had once felt its chords of sympathy moved by a skillful touch; she had known the heavenly charm of their deep, delicious harmony; and now they were silent, motionless, muffled, so to speak, in silks and satins.

These chords still and soundless, her heart was dead; not the less so because it had been killed by a golden shaft. Having known and felt the life of sympathy in love, she could not but mourn for it unconsolably by the life of luxury. In short, Katie in time became magnificently miserable, splendidly unhappy.

Then a change became apparent in her husband. He could not longer remain blind to the fact that his love was not returned. He sought the company of those whose gayety might lead him to forget the sorrow and despair of his soul. This shadow of joy was unsatisfactory, however, and impelled by powerful longings for love he went astray to warm his heart by a strange fire.

Katie saw herself now in the midst of a gorgeous desolation, burning with a thirst unconquerable by golden streams that flowed around her; panting with a hunger, not all the food of flattery could appease.

She reproached her husband for deserting her thus; and he answered with angry and desperate taunts of deception, and a total lack of love, which smote her heart heavily.

"You do not care for me," he cried; "then why should you complain that I bestow elsewhere the affections you have met with coldness?"

"But it was wrong and sinful," Kate remonstrated.

"Yes I know it!" said her husband fiercely. "It is the evil fruit of an evil seed. And who sowed that seed? Who gave me a hand without a heart? Who became a sharer of my fortune, but gave me no share in sympathy—who devoted me to the fate of a loving unloved husband? Nay, do not weep, and unclasp your hands, and sigh and sob in such desperation of impatience—for I say nothing you do not deserve to hear."

"Very well," said Katie, calming herself; "I will not complain. I will not say your reproaches are undeserved. But granting that I am the cold, deceitful thing you call me—you know that this state of things can not continue."

"Yes I know it."

"Well?"

Mr. Wellington's brows gathered darkly; his eyes flashed with determination; his lips curled with scorn.

"I have made up my mind," said he, "that we should not live together any longer. I am tired of being called the husband of the splendid Mrs. Wellington."

I will move in my circle; you shall shine in yours. I shall place no restraint on your actions, nor shall you on mine. We will be free. The world will admire you the same—and what more do you desire?" asked her husband bitterly. "The marriage of hands, and not of hearts, is a mockery. Few know the conventional meaning of the term husband and wife; but do you know what it should mean? Do you feel that the only true union is that of love and sympathy? Then enough of this mummerly! Farewell! I go to consult friends about the terms of separation. Nay, do not tremble and cry, and cling to me now—for I shall be liberal to you. As much of my fortune shall be yours as you desire."

He pushed her from him. She fell upon the sofa. From a heart torn with anguish she shrieked aloud.

"Frank! Frank! why did I send you from me? Why did I sacrifice love and happiness to such a fate as this? Why was I blind till sight brought me misery?"

She lay upon the sofa sobbing and weeping passionately. Gradually her grief appeared to exhaust itself; her head lay peacefully on her arm, over which swept her disheveled tresses—until, with a start, she cried:

"Frank! oh, Frank, come back!"

"Here I am," said a soft voice by her side.

She raised her head. She opened her astonished eyes, Frank was standing before her.

"You have been asleep," he said smiling kindly.

"Asleep?"

"And dreaming, too, I should say—not pleasantly either."

"Dreaming?" murmured Kate; "and is it all a dream?"

"I hope so," replied Frank, taking her hand.

"You could not mean to send me from you so cruelly, I know. I waited in your father's study, where I have been talking to him all of an hour—I came back to plead my cause once more and found you asleep."

"Oh what a horrid dream!" murmured Katie, rubbing her eyes. "It was so like a terrible reality, that I shudder now to think of it. I thought I was married!"

"And would that be so horrible?" asked Frank. "I hope then you did not dream that you were married to me?"

"No—I thought I gave my hand, without my heart."

"Then if you gave me your hand, it would not be without your heart?"

"No, Frank," said Katie, her bright eyes beaming happily through her tears, "and here it is."

And soon after there was a real marriage; not splendid, but a happy one; not followed by a life of luxury, but by a life of love and contentment; and that was the marriage of Frank Minot and Katie Yale.

Genuine Fish Stories

Brook Trout-Fishing.

Apropos of brook trout-fishing, the following, from Scott's "Fishing in American Waters," is worth reading:—

"Questions in relation to fishing up or down a stream should be decided by the condition of the stream and its borders. While casting from the shore it makes very little difference which way the stream is fished; but in wading it is best to fish up stream because it does not roil the water, and there is not so great liability to alarm the fish. In making a cast it is always best to draw the flies across the current, for then the drop-flies will play clear of the casting-line. This is the opinion of most good fly-fishers. First, cast up stream along the shore, and, if the stream be not too wide, cast to the farther shore, drawing your flies across the stream, but not too fast, lest the trout become suspicious. In striking, you cannot be too quick when fishing up a stream. Cast first near the shore; then a yard or two farther off; next, across the stream. If you get not a rise, take a step or two up the stream and repeat. Continue doing so until a doubt arises as to whether the trout admire your cast; then replace one fly by another of different color from any on your cast. If that does not take, after presenting it several times, take it off and try another extreme in color. Keep changing until you hit the fancy of the trout. When you have found the fly that the trout admire, change your other flies (if you fish with three) to those of colors in slight relief to the taking one; that is, put on one a trifle darker and the other a little lighter in shade. Anglers are not so high a remove above the rest of mankind as not to be susceptible to a slight influence from the baser sentiments of humanity; but I have actually seen a man so self-willed as to fish all day without a rise, 'because,' as he said, 'he was determined to bring the trout to his terms.'

"All kinds of angling call for the exercise of patience; but fly-fishing requires the gift of genius. Do not fish with too long a cast. In fishing a creek up stream, thirty to forty-five feet are quite sufficient. In striking let it be with sufficient force to fasten the hook in his jaw; but play your fish most gingerly, and even tenderly, but not so as to give him slack line, or he will disgorge the hook. One of the principle causes of losing large fish is the being in too great a hurry to land them. If the hook is well fastened, the more delicately your fish is played the better; for snubbing a fish hard at all points wears an orifice in its jaw from which the hook falls by the mere turning of the fish. It is true that the trout has a good mouth to hold the hook; but the hook must first be well fastened to hold, and then the orifice made in hooking should not be made larger in playing, if possible to avoid it."

Management of Turkeys.

It is well understood a turkey hen is one of the most steady setters of any known fowl, but after hatching her brood she is not a very careful mother, nor a good provider, as she does not scratch for her young like the hen, but leaves them to shift for themselves. These traits in turkey hens must be guarded against until the poults are able to accompany the mother over her extended range. The reason is obvious, because the young, at the time of their birth, give no signs of seeking their food, and they are not instructed so to do by their mother. The young poults cannot endure the same degree of hardship and cold as the common barn-yard chicks. They require dry, warm weather and good hearty food. Damp, cloudy days, sudden heavy showers, and wet grass must be guarded against until they "shoot the red," after that they are the hardiest of domestic fowls.

It is recommended to set at once all the turkey hens offering, using the common hens, if necessary, and to divide the broods, letting the mothers, thus deprived of their broods, return to laying. It seems important that we should feed them with such food, to begin with, to imitate the food taken into the stomach as they are released from the shell. Hard-boiled eggs mixed with milk, alternately with crumbled bread and milk, adding oat-meal cake gradually to the bread and milk, and increasing the quantity of the oat-meal.

Beet leaves, onions, garlic, lettuce, and dandelions may be fed to them sparingly at first, but increasing with their growth, until allowed to roam at will.—Poultry Monthly.

"I AM ALL PLAYED OUT" is a common complaint. If you feel so, get a package of Kidney-Wort and take it and you will at once feel its tonic power. It renews the healthy action of the kidneys bowels and liver, and thus restores the natural life and strength to the weary body. It can now be had in either dry or liquid form, and in either way is always prompt and efficient in action.—New Bedford Standard.

Instead of oil, which thickens and makes whetstones dirty, a mixture of glycerine and alcohol is used by many. The proportions of the mixture vary according to the instruments operated upon. An article with a large surface, a razor, for instance, sharpens best with a limpid liquid, as three parts of glycerine to one of alcohol.

THE POPULAR DEMAND.—So great has been the popular demand for the celebrated remedy Kidney-Wort, that it is having an immense sale from Maine to California. Some have found it inconvenient to prepare it from the dry compound. For such the proprietors now prepare it in liquid form. This can be procured at the druggists. It has precisely the same effect as the dry, but is very concentrated so that the dose is much smaller.—Lowell Mail.

Plant a tree; train a vine; foster a shrub; deposit a flower-seed and manure its blossom; paint the fence; "slick up" the yard; fix the sidewalk; in short, give heed to the little things that constitute the grand aggregate of public beauty.

A fact worth knowing: seven-eighths of the people in the United States are troubled with Kidney Complaint. ELIXIR OF LIFE ROOT will cure every case. Try it.

No man has ever yet reached to perfection; but no man has ever been rendered any worse by striving for it.

TROUT TALK WITH TOURISTS.

We are bothered much to get that amount of fishing and sporting news from the Lakes which, with our subscribers, we desire. If there is a person (or several, at the Lakes who, "for love or money," will properly attend to the matter, they will confer a favor by writing us at once. We are trying to make arrangements with our occasional correspondent, "Al. Boleyn," to go to the Lakes and serve up for our readers the sports, attractions and passing events at the Rangeleys in his peculiarly attractive manner. We know he would completely fill the bill. Our present list of subscribers, among fishermen, is not even half large enough to warrant the employing of a first class correspondent, yet if those interested will assist to simply double the number—less than one hundred—we'll engage the correspondent at once and trust to luck for the probable deficit. One gentleman of enterprise and means has already agreed to do twice as much as any other man towards the object. A gentleman from New York sends his own and three other subscriptions to further the object. We will put a dollar with every one received to make the PHONO. second to no paper of its class in this respect. "Al. Boleyn" is posted on all matters of interest to visitors or residents of the Lake country.

Our Reporter (American Newspaper) was not wholly accurate, we find on investigation, regarding "How they pass time in camp." The bet appears to have been offered by Mr. Geo. P. Rowell, of New York, to Mr. Moses, of Bath. The latter gentleman did catch a good string of trout; but Mr. Rowell raised the point that none were caught on the shore. The case was referred to Treasurer Williamson, who decided that the money was forfeited to the treasury of the association. This is the revised version.

The spring season has been very pleasant at Indian Rock, if we may judge from the number of members, some with their ladies, who have been "in" thus far, and the extra catches of trout reported. All speak in very complimentary terms of the present management of affairs at Camp Kennebag. Mr. and Mrs. Packard well understand their duties, and leave nothing undone for the comfort and pleasure of the visitors. Mrs. P. is spoken of as being a very tasty and model housekeeper.

Judge O. G. Hall and wife, of Rockland, were among the Elmwood arrivals this week.

"Kendrick" writes Thursday from the Mt. View: "It is so very cold this morning that I can hardly write. Last Sunday two caribou were seen swimming across Rangeley Lake.—We had a slight snow-storm this morning.—The work on the new meeting house at the 'city' is progressing rapidly.—Capt. Howard's dam at the outlet has been rebuilt.

A party of fishermen from Portland, says the Argus, have returned from Moosehead Lake with nineteen trout, "some of them weighing three pounds each." It is a small "party" that takes less than a hundred up this way, and it isn't worth mentioning if there are no 5, 6 or 7-pounders among them. Bah! Moosehead! Mooselook is the place.

One day last week, while Mr. John A. Shulze, of Philadelphia—now stopping with C. T. Richardson, at Haines' Landing—was fishing on the Big Lake, he espied a deer in the water and approaching the shore. He gave chase in his boat and came just near enough to the animal to miss laying his hand upon him as he gained the shore.

Mr. E. S. Boss, of Willimantic, Conn., with Mr. Ira Richards, of No. Attleboro, Mass., and a friend, called at our office Wednesday evening. Mr. Richards reports the catching by himself of a trout, last Monday, which weighed eight and one-half pounds. He claims it is the largest trout taken at the Lakes thus far this season.

One of our subscribers telegraphs as follows from Boston: "A box of trout by stage driver, Greenville, June 2d, for Boston, was left over somewhere and damaged. Please scold somebody soundly." —! —!! —!!! —!!!! How will that do?

Mr. Shulze, of Philadelphia, caught Wednesday sixty trout with a fly, averaging one pound each, the largest two lbs.—the smallest, one-half pound. They were taken in front of the Mooselookmegtuntic House. Mr. Shulze acted as guide for himself.

L. Skinner, Esq., of Boston, who with his son Fred, has been at the Lakes for a week or so and at the Barden House, succeeded last Friday in landing a trout that weighed eight pounds, near Haines' point, as we are informed by the lucky fisherman.

Parties fishing on the Big Lake recently, went ashore during a shower and there discovered the remains of a deer, where some one had killed and dressed it. Deer business, if detected in the work.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis B. Reed, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who have been spending a fortnight at Camp Kennebag, gave the PHONO. a pleasant call Wednesday, as they were on their way home.

J. Parker Whitney, Esq., a wealthy California gentleman, engaged in mining business, is expected with his family at the Elmwood to-day, from Camp Whitney, on the Richardson Lake.

The Boss party, from Mass. and Conn., just returned home, had excellent success in fishing at the Lakes, taking several large trout—one 8 1-2 pounder.

Mr. and Mrs. I. N. Packard, at the Rock, caught a string of eighteen trout one day recently, ranging from 3-pounders to more diminutive specimens.

We extend a hearty invitation to all persons interested in fishing and hunting notes from the Lakes, to furnish this paper such matters for publication.

Don't fail to leave a dollar at the PHONO. office, if you wish the Lake news after you get home. One month, on trial, 10c.

The people of South Strong complain that the fares on the Narrow Gauge are not made to accommodate that locality. Although there is a way-station, there are no tickets provided for passengers going to or coming from So. Strong. Incoming from Farmington, one has the alternative to purchase a ticket to Strong (60c.), or to purchase no ticket, and pay 10 cts. excess. If they purchase a ticket to Strong, it is taken up, without their having had its full benefit, by two and one-half miles. If they leave Phillips with a ticket for Strong, they are compelled to pay 15 cts. more to South Strong. They also complain that their freight has been charged the same as though it was carried to Strong. We have no disposition to find fault with the road, but present these facts at the request of our subscribers in the locality referred to.

The committee of the Maine Press Association will visit the lakes early next week to make necessary arrangements for the excursion the first week in August. We trust all interested will deem it of importance to put their "best foot forward" to make the excursion agreeable, and to count in the future. Let us remember that residents of our own state know less of the Lakes than those of Massachusetts, and as nearly all the papers in the State will be represented, no such opportunity will ever be presented again, in all probability, as far as showing up the Lake country is concerned. Of all things, let the hotels have a supply of trout on hand for this special occasion—cost what it will—for they will expect it. The Hotel supplying the fullest fare of Lake beauties (depend upon it) will possess more attraction to the hungry editorial fraternity than any other!

The joint convention met at noon Wednesday, at Albany, and voted for the vacancy caused by the resignation of Conkling as follows: Combined vote:

Jacobs,	49	Bradley,	1
Conkling,	31	Folger,	2
Wheeler,	25	Lapham,	10
Rogers,	18	Tremaine,	3
Cornell,	10	Crowley,	2

No choice.

The combined vote, for Platt's vacancy, was as follows:

Depew,	54	Crowley,	4
Kernan,	50	Lapham,	1
Platt,	26	Rogers,	1
Folger,	2	Tracy,	1
Cornell,	10

No choice.

About three weeks ago four Americans were killed near Frintanes in Chihuahua, three of whom were supposed to have been cowboys. The cowboys had been concentrating with the avowed purpose of avenging the death of their comrades. They threatened to take Frintanes last week, and word was sent to the Mexican consul who sent warning to the people at Frintanes, and also notified 200 Mexican federal troops stationed at San Bernardino ranch. Wednesday morning, seventy cow boys were equipped and left Wilcox to carry out their threats, and it is believed there will be bloody work, as they were the most reckless gang of desperadoes ever banded together. The Mexicans will either have to leave the place or make a hard fight. Frintanes is about forty miles from Wilcox.

The mystery surrounding the burning to death of Mrs. Mary Gilmore in the house occupied by her at Kittery Point, on the morning of June 2d, is again vigorously prosecuted. Several suspicious circumstances in connection therewith, have come to light, showing conclusively that the triple crimes of murder, robbery and incendiarism were no doubt committed.

—Geo. A. French, the upper village grocer, presents a new and attractive advertisement, this week—on the 3d page. George's business, we are happy to say, compares perfectly with his advertising—in fact it is the heaviest business in his line done in town.

DURING THE HOT SUMMER MONTHS, while away from city conveniences, the traveller should make some provisions against sudden attacks of headache, Neuralgia, Cholera Morbus, Cramps, and other diseases. Trichell, Champlin & Co's Standard Neuralgia Anodyne when taken according to the directions on each bottle, will relieve the distress and remove the cause of any of these troubles. Try it and be convinced. ly21

—Mr. Abbe, of New York, who has been stopping at the Elmwood, found excellent fishing in some of our brooks, as he returned one night with nearly two hundred brook trout.

Local Notes.

—A probate notice is published in another column.

—O. W. Russell has left a door key at this office, lost by someone.

—There was another killing frost in some localities Thursday night.

—Will the party holding the town house key please leave it at this office.

—The Maranacook Musical Festival occurs next Wednesday, the 22d.

—Between the drouth and frosts, we fear the crops up this way will fair slim.

—Wanted, at this office, at once, the services of a house painter, for a short job.

—Mr. Farmer is fitting up his little cottage in excellent shape for summer boarders.

—As we go to press, Mr. Bangs is reported very low, and is thought to be dying.

—The Good Templars will hold no more public sociables during the summer months.

—H. A. Hunter has taken several eight-pound fleeces from his yearling lambs this spring.

—We observe that P. A. J. Norton and son, of Strong, are building an addition to their house.

—The Elmwood arrivals, from May 14, to June 9, appear on the second page—about 300 names.

—The story of Pierpole, published last week, we neglected to say was taken from Swift's Historical Magazine.

—The Piro, erected an awning last week, and now the wind is determined to take the blamed thing down.

—There are again rumors of something of interest in Phillips for the 4th of July—two weeks from next Monday.

—The air was heavily impregnated with smoke Thursday, and even the heavy wind prevailing did not clear it away.

—Joseph Toothaker was again tapped last week by Dr. Winter. He still remains about as then and when last reported.

—Capt. Howard was in town Tuesday. His new steamer is now plying the waters of the Kennebec, in daily excursions to the islands.

—Al. J. Goodwin claims the boss fleece. He took from his Merino buck an unwashed fleece which weighed 21 1-2 lbs. Hey, George?

—Mrs. Dr. Kimball was in town last week, and superintended the erection of a pretty little monument over the grave of little Harry.

—A. J. Blethen, Esq., of the Kansas City (Mo.) Journal, made a flying visit to Portland, Kents Hill, Farmington and Strong, last week.

—In another column N. E. Vining offers for sale his new cottage residence and harness-making business. A good chance for someone.

—Mayor Ladd, of Gardiner, now on business in Madrid, favored us with call Monday. He reports Dr. Kimball having an excellent practice.

—Something is the matter with the dogs. The large dog, belonging to Mr. John Toothaker, died this week, as also did one belonging to H. R. Fuller.

—The Phillips home-made telephones cost from two dollars to more, according to distance, and we'll guarantee that none are made to give better satisfaction.

—The Excelsior Monthly, by D. H. Knowlton & Co., Farmington, was duly received. It is a neat publication and of especial interest to teachers and scholars.

—Miss Nettie Brawn kindly remembers the editor with a beautiful bouquet of large "snow-balls." Miss and Mrs. Brawn were in Lowell, Mass., during the winter.

—We hear considerable inquiry for "mileage tickets" on the Narrow Gauge. A gentleman averred recently that the road could sell $1,000 worth of mileage tickets in a week, if they were consistently low-priced. Why wouldn't it be well to try it; and doesn't the public demand make such a thing almost imperative?

—Mr. Moody, formerly of the Somerset Reporter, passed through here with his wife Monday, making a tour of the Lakes. Mr. M. is now connected with the Boston Herald.

—Among the arrivals at the Elmwood the past week, we notice Judge Thayer, of Worcester, Mass., and also Commodore Pickering, of the U. S. Navy, from Portsmouth.

—Mrs. Henry Bigelow and her little daughter, from Boston, are stopping for a few weeks at the Elmwood. They were here last season and will ever be welcome as the seasons come.

—The sermon by Rev. Mr. Swift, of Farmington, at Union church, last Sabbath, is spoken of as of a high order, proving a rich literary treat to those who gave it their presence and attention.

—Mr. Page, who is continually making improvements at the "Elmwood," has the past week built a dam across the arm of the river, just below the rustic bridge, which keeps the water back and makes quite a large pond.

—Last Saturday and Sunday were very hot days. Tuesday occurred several refreshing showers, and Wednesday and Thursday were very breezy and cold—more like October than June days. Thursday forenoon the thermometer registered 50.

—Mrs. John Wilbur, of Phillips, while visiting her daughter, Mrs. Jas. Lambert, in Strong, last Friday, was thrown from her carriage by a wheel coming off. She struck the ground upon her head and shoulders, receiving severe injuries. She remained insensible for days, and is still in a critical condition.

—At the Republican caucus, held Tuesday afternoon, at the Town House, the following delegates to the District convention were instructed to vote for the nomination of Nelson Dingley, Jr., of Lewiston as candidate for Representative to Congress: Seward Dill, D. F. Hodges, Benj. Tarbox and S. D. Davis.

—Which of you—twain—set up all night Sunday looking for an eclipse? The eclipse got along one day sooner than we intended. Its appearance Sunday morning, from our standpoint, was somewhat obscured by the smoky atmosphere. During totality it resembled somewhat a rusty old cent in a pan of molasses. It was too dark to look very pretty!

—A horse belonging to D. B. Sprague, of North Farmington, recently kicked a heifer to death. Mr. Edmund Gay, residing there, had a slight paralytic shock a few days since, and Sunday was still helpless. Alvin Tufts returned last week to No. F., from California, having been absent eight and one-half years. His friends did not recognize him.

—Last Friday, Herbert Lufkin stuck an axe into his foot, splitting open the small toe. Frank Toothaker, of West Phillips, while shearing sheep, met with a painful accident. The sheep kicked the shears and while one point passed through the little finger, the other entered the palm of the right hand. Both these young men were at work for H. A. Hunter.

—D. H. Toothaker showed us Thursday a small twig broken from an apple tree on which were four apples just formed and a full blown white rose, with 17 petals. The apple blossom has but four. Mr. Toothaker has a flower, known as the Amarylis, which had budded last fall when it was put in the cellar. The bud remained through the winter, though fading much, but when the plant was brought to the open air this month, the bud opened and is still to be seen.

—Something more about our cow. She entered the barn last fall, fat as butter. After dropping her calf in March, she was sick for three or four weeks; became so thin and weak that she could scarcely walk. With good care and some wheat bran, besides her grass, she now equals any young cow in town. This week's churning, from six days' milk, produced eight and one-half pounds of as good yellow butter as any country editor ever even smelled of. The cow gives less than a "ten-quart pail" of milk at each milking, and a family of five have all they want of that. Trot out your prize four-year-olds! The cow is said to be about one part Jersey to three parts Durham.

STRONG.—BY C. E. N.

An attractive band stand has been completed, painted white with green lattice work. The band occupied it for the first time last Saturday evening entertaining a large crowd very pleasantly. A strawberry festival will be given by the band next Saturday evening (18th) at the hall. There will be plenty of strawberries, plenty of cream, plenty of music to sweeten the same, and it is hoped that all the good people will attend with plenty of coppers in their pockets to spend.

The view and hearing before the joint board of Commissioners of Franklin and Somerset Counties on petition of Israel R. Bray and others for improving road between Kingfield and Strong R. R. Station, takes place this week. J. H. Thompson and P. H. Stubbs, Esq., appear for the petitioners. It is thought that if this improvement is secured, it will greatly promote the traveling and transportation facilities of the North Eastern portion of the County.

Your readers here were greatly pleased with the sketch of our ancient fellow citizen, Pierpole, in the last issue of the PHONOGRAPH, and hope it may be continued. And will the writer kindly inform us as to the "rifles" that the Indians were using so freely in those ancient times—whose make were they? Spencer's?

The agent for Encyclopedia Britannica has secured the subscription of P. H. Stubbs, Esq., Mr. E. S. Porter, Rev. Mr. Holmes, and Miss Lillie Morrell at this place. To sell four so costly works in a place of this size speaks well for the place or the agent—which?

Our Postmaster, Mr. Gilkey, is now suffering from a broken leg. The accident occurred about three weeks ago. At that time it was thought that he had merely sprained his ankle, but after the lapse of eleven days, the leg was found to be broken.

A class of singers in this place is now preparing for the musical festival at Lake Maranacook next Wednesday.

Next Sabbath will be observed as "Children's Sunday" at the Congregational church.

Mr. Hugh Staples is putting in the machinery for A. F. Smith's circular saw-mill.

G. H. McLeary will burn a kiln of bricks (100,000,) this season, at South Strong.

FARMINGTON.—BY GEO.

Runaway teams, tipovers and collisions too frequent to particularize. A special one occurred near the Forest House Wednesday evening. Two covered carriages, occupied by a lady and gentlemen in each, collided. One was capsized, hurling the occupants to the ground. The lady made quick time in getting away from that particular place and it is fair to presume that she was not seriously injured. The plucky driver held firmly to his frightened animal until assistance came to the rescue. It was a narrow escape from a serious accident.

The Misses May's school at this place closed (for good we understand) last Friday, with their usual exhibition in the evening at the Old South which was pronounced very good indeed by those who were present. [We hear it again said the Misses May will locate their school in Strong.—Ed.]

Diphtheria prevails to some extent in our village. One death occurred from it last week—Harry M. Smart aged 9 years. There are quite a number of other cases, some of them quite severe, but with fair prospects of recovery.

Our village school will close Friday. The Normal school will close Thursday, June 30th.

High winds and clouds of dust prevailed Thursday.

Our Carthage correspondent writes: One of J. M. Getchell's horses broke his leg last week. Mrs. Ebenezer Hutchinson is not expected to live long.

—Mr. E. A. Rogers, of Rangeley, has been visiting Augusta, Portland and Boston the past week, on business connected with the Phillips and Rangeley stage line. Mr. Rogers is enterprising, and means to push things, to the entire satisfaction of the public.

—C. C. Bangs has been quite ill during the past few days. Mr. Bangs has been too active in business for one in his general state of health, and is now suffering in consequence. We hope he will soon be about again.

BORN.—In Salem, June 10, to Mr. and Mrs. Almon A. Carvill, a daughter. June 15th, to Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Harris, a daughter.
